October Highlights

Transformers 4: Age of Extinction

One seldom looks forward to long-haul flights, but they're also an opportunity to turn off every electronic communication device and simply enjoy the on-board entertainment on offer. SAA's extensive menu features blockbuster movies, recent award winners, classics and the best television has to offer. Your time in the sky will be deeply rewarding so best you make your choices as soon as you're seated.

Robin Williams sad passing earlier this year on August 11th, was followed by numerous tributes from comedic luminaries including Ellen de Generes and Billy Crystal. Williams rose to fame as a member of the Mork & Mindy cast and went on to win numerous awards including Golden Globes, Grammy awards and an Oscar for a best supporting role in Good Will Hunting. In the 1993 Chris Columbus film, Williams plays an out of work voice actor who takes on the persona of a British nanny, Mrs. Euphegenia Doubtfire. With his marriage on the rocks and the prospect of losing custody of his three kids, Williams' character dreams up a plan to pose as a housekeeper when his wife decides that their kids are in need of some discipline.

Based on the 1963 Pierre Boulle novel, Planet of the Apes has proved one of the most enduring franchises achieving success of the big and small screens. The first film hit theatres in 1968 and was followed in rapid succession by three more offerings in the early 70s. The latest iteration Dawn of the Planet of the Apes has Matt Reeves at the helm and stars Andy Serkis, Gary Oldman and Keri Russell. This prequel has a small group of apes encountering a band of humans – the last remaining members after the species after a virus has ravaged the planet. The 'clash of cultures' forms the epicenter of the plot and the question at hand is whether or not the two life-forms can co-exist or whether they will be locked in an apocalyptic battle.

Josh Green's novel The Fault in Our Stars comes to the screen courtesy of director Josh Boone. A sassy teenager (Shailene Woodley) is diagnosed with cancer. In an attempt to help her cope, her mother requests that she join a support group. She meets a boy (Ansel Elgort) who has lost a leg as a result of cancer. As their friendship develops, they agree to read one another's favourite novels. The girl's favourite novel has an abrupt conclusion and the writer has moved to Switzerland where he lives in quiet seclusion. Elgort's character mounts a plan for the duo to track him down in the hope that he will reveal a more definitive resolution to the novel.

Brad Pitt and Cate Blanchett were originally scheduled to star in Darren Aronofsky's The Fountain. The studio, Warner Bros, shut down the production but Aronofsky was able to get things back on track following a re-write and getting Hugh Jackman and Rachel Weisz on board. The film contains three separate stories occurring in different centuries and all featuring Jackman and Weisz. Aronofsky wanted to deal with the death of a young person still in the bloom of their early adulthood. While the stories are non-linear, the overwhelming essence of tale deals with preparing for one's own demise.

Glee actor Cheyenne Jackson recently married his partner Jason Landau. In attendance at their wedding were Jane Lynch, Jesse Tyler Ferguson and Leah Remini. First broadcast in 2009, the series proved wildly successful in its television incarnation, at the big-screen box office and in terms of ancillary income including album sales. Nominated for numerous awards, the show won Golden Globe award for Best Television Series in 2011. Ryan Murphy, one of the show's creators, is responsible for the choice of songs covered – episodes have featured music by Madonna and Christmas songs.

TAMMY

Comedy – 96 min

Melissa McCarthy has proven her star-power in several stand-out roles. Many would argue that she stole the show as a police detective opposite Sandra Bullock in The Heat and there were several scene-stealing moments in Paul Feig's Bridesmaids. Not everyone can do physical comedy and accolades for McCarthy's performance have taken this element into consideration.

But taking on the lead role in a movie is a very different in that the audience's attention is squarely focused in your direction. McCarthy co-wrote and produced her first marquee role with her husband Ben Falcone who also makes his directorial debut.

Tammy (with McCarthy in the titular role) is an impetuous, loud and often despairing woman stuck in a dead-end job and a marriage that she's finding almost impossible to keep together. We meet her when she hits a deer and as a result is (once again) late for work. Her assistant manager (Falcone) duly fires her; then things go from bad to worse when she returns home to find her hubby in a romantic entanglement with their next-door neighbor. Tammy can't take any more, and though she's threatened to leave many times in the past, she gets in her car and drives out of town.

However, she's not alone. Her grandmother Pearl (Susan Sarandon) is eager to join the road-trip – the fact that she owns an old Cadillac and has a wad of cash, convince Tammy to allow her to tag along. There are abundant prospects for the two, Pearl has the hots for an aging barfly, there's a fast-food robbery and they attend a party at the home of a well-to-do lesbian, but the trip is there one real chance to peel back the layers of their respective lives, taking a long, hard look at just why they find themselves in such ill-starred circumstances.

Cathy Bates, Gary Cole and a woefully underutilized Toni Collette all make appearances, testimony to the fact that McCarthy is a bonafide star. While while the film isn't quite in the same league as Thelma and Louise (Sarandon again as you'll recall) or the raunchy aforementioned Bridesmaids, it has much to offer in the way of belly-laughs and touching moments.

INTERVIEW

“I started DJ-ing at friends’ birthday parties when I was 13 years old.”

DJ Euphonik

Themba Nkosi aka DJ Euphonik, is one of South Africa’s most successful young turntable talents. Having established himself on the club scene and working with 5FM drive-time host DJ Fresh, he is also one of the “must listen to” presenters on the airwaves.

Airscape: How did you get into DJing and where did you get your start?

Euphonik: One needs to learn certain skills before entering the club environment. I started DJing at friend’s birthday parties when I was 13 years old. I started watching other DJs I looked up to and looked at what they did. I would do my research about it and try and find out as much as possible. After getting a residency at a club in Midrand, I would introduce myself to DJs and network as much as I could – I then started doing mixes on YFM and in 2006 got my own show on 5FM.

Airscape: What are some of the best gigs you’ve played?

Euphonik: The best gig I ever played at was Ultra Fest South Africa. Other great gigs are H2O and Spring Fiesta which I played at every year.

Airscape: Who are the local and international DJs you admire and why?

Euphonik: Avicii for his innovation and marketing genius; Tiesto for his consistency; and Swedish House Mafia for their overall talent.

Airscape: Becoming a fixture on 5fm has provided you with a national platform. How have you adapted to being a radio DJ?

Euphonik: I didn’t have to adapt much, I just do what I do in clubs - it’s just to a larger audience now. It is great having such a huge platform, I get to play music I love to people who love it too. The difference between radio and a club is that I don’t have to worry about whether the radio audience is dancing or not.

Airscape: You’ve achieved so many of your ambitions. What’s next in your professional evolution?

Euphonik: I would like to help other people in the same industry to achieve their goals and I would also like to take my career globally.
